

On the move

“Mobile peoples” is nothing to do with telephones. It’s the new politically correct phrase for nomads, who are under increasing threat not just from dwindling natural resources but also, they say, from the global conservation industry. The name was chosen recently at a meeting in Jordan.